

Pope Francis says that we, as intelligent beings, capable of love, are called to lead all creatures back to their Creator.

Vegetable garden

Reflecting and imbibing the document Laudato si of Pope Francis we Vimalalayam community embraced this encyclical with much joy, caring for the cosmos and incarnating life through vegetation that we planted so that we practice the virtue of chastity i.e. incarnating life in the environment, and nourishing the life of the people through the life that we receive from nature.

Solar Panel

The solar system was inaugurated on 28th August 2022. It has altogether 36 panels and it contains 50MKH. It is more than sufficient for Vimalalayam main building, Annex building, 3 hostels (one student and two working women), and the Welfare center.

Poultry farm

Nature speaks to us through various living animals, birds, fruits, vegetation, etc. we also rejoice when we see life in the poultry. We are blessed to consume our homegrown chicken and eggs which energize our bodies with chemical-free produce.

Being compassionate to His creation

Compassion and love are expressed by the hostilities to the newly born kitten after the death of their mother cat. Edifying to see the love for the creation.

Bio Gas Plant

We try our level best to protect the environment by segregating wet and dry waste. It helps us to produce biogas for cooking. We don't misuse the energy given by nature so it helps us to use commercial gas responsibly.

Fish cultivation

Marine life in rivers, lakes, seas, and oceans, feeds a great part of the world. Marine organisms which we tend to overlook, represent a significant element in the ocean food chain, and species used for our food ultimately depend on them. - Laudatosi.

We are glad that we do fish cultivation in a small way to help us understand and see the beauty of God's creation without chemical substances which can destroy health through this initiative we enjoy formalin-free fish.

Conclusion

Laudato si has taught us to love the environment to use, re-use, reduce, and reproduce. The earth has given its harvest and our God has blessed us with abundance. May the Lord continue to bless us and let us all revere Him.
